

Citizen Journalism in Place

(To “activate” this poster, see the instructions on the reverse side.)

“Food deserts are often located in low-income areas and have become a center for fast food chains. Street vendors provide an alternative to that. Citizen journalism is bringing awareness to the stories that matter to your community. Street vendors are an important part of my community and culture. Their stories and lives matter, and as a community, we should support and protect them from individuals who wish to diminish them.”

Citizen Journalist/Artist, Daniella Cornejo, 2021